5. GENERAL DESCRIPTION - continued

Located in the southern half of Charlotte County, Drakes Branch is conveniently situated at the intersection of Route 47 connecting Charlotte Court House with Chase City and Route 59 leading from Keysville to Randolph. The Southern Railroad, originally known as the Richmond and Danville Railroad, also runs along the eastern edge of town. The town takes its name from Drakes Branch, a creek that runs through the town and empties into Twitty's Creek to the southeast. Located within a small valley, the commercial street is bordered on either side by ridges with residential neighborhoods that also include the school and many of the churches in town. To the north of the commercial district, Main Street curves and becomes more residential in nature.

The commercial district of Drakes Branch centers along Main Street from the railroad northward approximately two blocks to Dunlop Street and includes the one block of Jackson Street. The one- and two-story buildings of this district date from the 1890s to the 1920s. The primary building material is brick with corbelled brickwork providing the dominant detailing in the facades. Many of the buildings retain their original storefronts with recessed entrances flanked by store windows. The second stories of these buildings are almost entirely intact. The wood-paneled lobby of the Post Office is intact, complete with mail boxes and cashier's window. The J.C. Paulett Warehouse, located on Jackson Street directly adjacent to Main Street, stands as a reminder of the many warehouses that originally occupied the area adjacent to the railroad. Unfortunately, the tobacco warehouses, prizeries, and the depot, which were located along the railroad at the southern end of town, are no longer standing. Several ca. 1930s garages and auto repair shops have also been constructed along Main Street and these buildings, while smaller in scale and more utilitarian in design, contribute to the district as they maintain the cohesion of the streetscape and relate to the significance of the town's location along major transportation routes.

6. HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE

Please explain why this area is significant in relation to local or state history. Are there any significant historical events, persons, or families that are associated with the proposed district? Does the district's architecture represent certain themes (commerce, transportation, industry, architecture, etc.) or historical periods that are important to the community's history and development? You might cite or include copies of bibliographic materials that strengthen your argument for historical significance.

SIGNIFICANCE

The proposed historic district of Drakes Branch, comprised of commercial buildings along Main and Jackson Streets dating from 1880 to 1945, is potentially eligible for National Register listing under Criteria A and C with significance in the area of commerce. This commercial district retains a high level of integrity as an intact stretch of late 19th and early 20th century commercial buildings that reflect the prominence of the town as a leading tobacco market and banking center for southern Charlotte County.

HISTORY

The area of Drakes Branch has figured prominently in the history and development of Charlotte County since its earliest settlement. Originally part of the Thomas Bouldin land grant of 400 acres along Twitty's Creek known as Golden Hill, the area was settled as early as the mid 19th century. Its position of geographic and social importance was further established with the construction in 1747 of nearby Roanoke Chapel, the first Episcopal chapel in the area.

The development of Drakes Branch has always been closely associated with its location along major transportation routes. The town first gained prominence with the construction in the 1850s of the Marysville Plank Road, connecting Drakes Branch with the county seat. This was soon replaced by the Richmond and Danville Railroad. By 1853, Drakes Branch consisted of approximately 30 families with a post office and a store in the town. The construction of the railroad, however, brought destruction to the early settlement as the Union troops burned the depot and tracks during Wilson's Raid that led to the Battle of Roanoke Bridge in 1864.

Following the Civil War, L.S. Squire purchased 816 acres of land south of Twitty's Creek and subdivided the land to develop a town in 1868. Squires promoted his new town as being at the center of the county and "destined to be the next county seat" (Ailsworth et al: 309). Although it did not supplant Marysville as the county seat, the town of Drakes Branch did develop successfully during the second half of the 19th century. With the reconstruction of the railroad and the recovery of the tobacco market by the late 1890s, the town began to thrive as a leading dark tobacco market with sales reaching 5,600,000 pounds in 1908 (Daniel, 28). By 1903 Drakes Branch was incorporated with a population numbered 703. The town, which centered along Main Street, included two tobacco warehouses, six prizeries, ten stores, one drugstore, an iron foundry, a brick plant, a high school, and two hotels (Carrington, 139). The Bank of Chase City was established in 1902 and was later bought in 1908 by local interests and renamed the State Bank of Charlotte County with a branch office at Charlotte Court House. The prosperity of the town continued into the first half of the 20th century as the tobacco markets continued to thrive during the war years.

7. PHOTOGRAPHS

Black-and-white photographs and color slides of general views and streetscapes (photo showing buildings along one side of a block or portion of block) must be provided. The inclusion of photographs is essential to the completion of this application.

5. GENERAL DESCRIPTION

Describe the general character of the proposed historic district. You might consider the qualities that distinguish the district from its surroundings, the types of buildings that are included in the district, architectural styles that are represented, density of development, street patterns, landscaping, important open spaces (parks, agricultural fields), and natural features (rivers, hills, forests, etc.). Continue on next page or attach additional sheets of paper if necessary.

The proposed Keysville Historic District is composed of the two major roads leading through the town -- King Street and Railroad Street -- which comprises the main commercial area of the town. The area is bounded to the west by the railroad tracks with Newcomb's Store (248-5001-14) at the intersection of State Routes 15 and 360 serving as the eastern terminus. The intersection of King Street and Railroad Street bounds the district to the north and the Hotel Charlotte and Keysville Railroad Station serve as a southern terminus.

The proposed district is comprised primarily of commercial buildings located along the railroad and King Street and residential and institutional buildings east along King Street. These resources include a train station, a hotel, a church, a theater, a car dealership, a school, a church, and numerous retail stores and residences that range in date of construction from the 1890s to the 1940s. The buildings retain a moderate to high level of integrity with two of the properties included in the proposed district, the Charlotte Hotel and the Keysville Railroad Station, have been determined individually eligible for listing on the National Register.

The earliest section of the district is located along Railroad Street with the ca. 1893 Wilson & Company General Store, the ca. 1897 W.H. Rutledge Barroom, and the ca. 1907 Hotel Charlotte. The hotel, which is spaciouly set back on a large lot of land and surrounded by trees, is a large, two-story frame structure designed in the Queen-Anne style with a two-story wraparound porch, projecting bays, and scrollsawn detailing in the porch and gables. The interior of this structure with its lobby, dining room, and ladies waiting room remains intact. The Keysville Railroad Station is located directly across the tracks from the hotel. This ca. 1915 frame station is typical of early 20th century rural railroad station design with its wide overhanging eaves with scrollsawn profile brackets and gabled dormer that views the tracks. The interior plan features separate waiting rooms, a ticket counter, offices, and the freight room with its scales. The two-story, brick commercial buildings along Railroad Street are also typical of late-19th century commercial design with their stepped parapet roof and three-bay facade.

The buildings along the first two blocks of King Street include a wide variety of functions and building dates, due to several fires and tornadoes that have destroyed sections of this area over the years. The buildings are typically one- and two-story and of brick construction with corbelled brickwork providing the primary detailing. Keeling's Drug is a good example of a recessed storefront with original wood door and show windows topped by transoms. The New Theater, constructed in 1937, is unique to the area with its Art Deco detailing in the stylized metal pilasters with fluting and geometric designs that frame the facade. The 1923 Hanmer Motor Car Company is a larger building for the area due to its function as an automobile dealership. This two-story brick building features a flat roof with parapet and projecting pilasters.

The residences located along King Street are substantial in size and set back from the street in residential yards. Frame construction is the predominant building material. Built during a period from the 1890s to the 1930s, these domestic resources vary in style. The ca. 1900 House, King Street, is an example of the transition from the Queen-Anne to the Colonial-Revival style with its corner turret, decorative woodwork, and wraparound porch with pedimented gable and Doric columns. Other examples of the Queen-Anne style have simpler forms with a side-gable roof with a central peak and decorative woodwork in the gables and porches.

The Pettus and Caldwell, P.C. Attorneys at Law building, with its molded cornice, fascia board, and pedimented window and door crowns is an example of the Colonial-Revival style that gained popularity at the beginning of the 20th century.

Institutions represented within the proposed district include the Keysville Presbyterian Church, which has been converted into the town library, and the Keysville High School. The Keysville Presbyterian Church, constructed in 1916, is an excellent example of the Carpenter Gothic style with its novelty siding, wide eaves with exposed rafters and knee braces, arched openings, and the central belfry. A parsonage is located adjacent to the church. The 1912 Keysville School is typical of high-school design in the county and is very similar to schools in Charlotte Court House, Drakes Branch, and Madisonville. The two-story brick building is square in form with a low hip roof with wide eaves and grouped windows indicating the different classrooms. This complex also includes a ca. 1920 auditorium building.

The importance of transportation to the development of Keysville is reiterated at the eastern terminus of the district with the ca. 1930 Newcomb's Store strategically located at the fork in the road. This two-story frame building is covered with asbestos shingles and features polygonal side bays that take advantage of the site. This store marks the boundary of the historic section of Keysville as the area to the east of this store has been recently developed.

The proposed district is composed of a cohesive collection of commercial, residential, and institutional buildings that retain a moderate level of integrity.

6. HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE

Please explain why this area is significant in relation to local or state history. Are there any significant historical events, persons, or families that are associated with the proposed district? Does the district's architecture represent certain themes (commerce, transportation, industry, architecture, etc.) or historical periods that are important to the community's history and development? You might cite or include copies of bibliographic materials that strengthen your argument for historical significance.

The town of Keysville, located at the intersection of the Richmond-Danville Railroad and the King's Highway (State Route 15) in Charlotte County is recommended as eligible for listing on the National Register as an historic district under Criteria A and C with significance in the areas of architecture, and commerce, transportation for the period 1890 to 1950. The district, with is comprised of commercial, residential, rail-related, educational, religious, recreational, and automobile-related resources, retains a high level of integrity as a cohesive collection of late 19th to mid-20th century buildings. Located along the railroad tracks, the town served as a major transportation and shipping center for Charlotte County and is considered significant on the local level.

The town of Keysville first developed around an early 19th century tavern operated by John Keys along the "King's Highway" leading to the crossing of the Staunton River. By 1835, this community along the stage route consisted of seven dwellings, one store, and one tavern with a population of 70 (Martin). The town experiences a small boom with the construction of the Richmond-Danville Railroad in the 1850s. The railroad, however, also brought on the destruction of General Wilson's Raid during the Civil War.

Keysville, which had existed as Key's Tavern in the early 19th century, continued to develop as a commercial and shipping center on the Richmond-Danville Railroad. In 1874, the land improvement company of Hardman and Rummel purchased the Keysville tract of 300 acres and subdivided the land into business and residential lots for sale. The town was incorporated in 1887 and the first census reported a population of 126 people in the corporate limits (Crouch, 9). The town was further developed as a railroad and resort town by the Virginia Land Improvement Company in 1891 with plans to accommodate 10,000 people. Its high elevation (the highest between Richmond and Danville) and the Keysville Tonic Springs helped to promote the town as a resort. The railroad also promoted industrial development as it provided shipment for products to new markets. By the late 1890s, the town of Keysville boasted a sawmill, a shuffle and spool manufacturing plant, a planing mill, and a lumber drying kiln (Crouch, 11). The early commercial center of town was located along Railroad Street and included the ca. 1890 W.H. Rutledge Bar Room (248-5001-003) and the ca. 1893 Wilson and Company General Store (248-5001-004).

Several disasters, including a tornado in 1882 and three fires between 1887 and 1893 retarded the town's development. By 1907, however, Keysville was well established with a population of 600 and a number of industries and businesses, including: the Bank of Keysville, a branch of the Bank of Chase City, two large tobacco warehouses, nine general stores, Keeling's Drug Store (19-5001-005), the Hanmer Motor Car Company, six churches, and two hotels. Industries included the Keysville Shuttle and spool Manufacturing Company, West & Willis Planing Mills, the Bon Air Manufacturing Company, the Virginia Silk Company, and the Crystal Ice and Power Plant (248-5006). Two hotels, the ca. 1907 Charlotte Hotel (248-5001-001) and the Keysville Hotel, served the local residents, railroad passengers and tourists (Carrington, 141-142). In 1912, the Keysville High School (248-5001-012) was constructed and dramatic and musical performances were held in Clark's Hall over Clark's Store on King Street. Electricity came to the town ca. 1914 when the Crystal Ice and Power Plant was converted to an electrical plant (Crouch, 21). In 1897, two fires destroyed the business district along King Street and a tornado in 1915 caused further damage.

The town recovered again from these natural disasters and continued to grow and modernize with the progression of the 20th century. The Hanmer Motor Car Company (248-5001-007), which was established in 1913, built the current showroom on King Street in 1923. The New Theater (248-5001-006) was established in 1937 on King Street in a building that reflected the influence of the Art-Deco style in its detailing. The last passenger train stopped in Keysville in 1956, although freight trains still pass through the town which continues to serve as a commercial center for the eastern section of Charlotte County.

7. PHOTOGRAPHS

Black-and-white photographs and color slides of general views and streetscapes (photo showing buildings along one side of a block or portion of block) must be provided. Photographs of significant individual buildings, structures, objects, and sites within the proposed district should also be included. The inclusion of photographs is essential to the completion of this application.

Please include a map showing the location and boundaries of the proposed historic district. A sketch map is acceptable if street names, route numbers, addresses, buildings, prominent geographic features, and a north arrow are clearly indicated.

9. ADDITIONAL COMMENTS:

The area to the west of the railroad tracks and south of Route 40, which was primarily settled by the African-American community, should be further investigate to determine if it should be included in the proposed historic district. The area to the east of the railroad tracks and north of King Street, including Church Street where a number of early churches and other institutions were located, should also be further studied to determine inclusion in the historic district.
